

Abstract

Variable optical attenuators that use a blade in a gap between two fibers to control the optical attenuation without having coupling optics in the gap, where the blade has at least one blade surface at an angle with respect to an end facet of one fiber.

10138362.doc